Poisonous Plant Guide

It's good to know what your pets could have a reaction to, but do not fret, it doesn't mean that you cannot have tulips or privet in your yard! You may need to have your favorite plant in an area that your pet cannot get to. If you already have the plant in your yard and your pet hasn't bothered it, then chances are it's not a problem!

Some pets just aren't nose-y! Animals often have a sense about what is good and bad for them.

This list is primarily for dogs and cats but remember small children can become ill or die from many of these plants! Remember goats, horses, cows and pigs can be affected too!
